Recently I have noticed some more graffiti on the pavements and paths of Dysart. Yellow crosses appeared here and there around Dysart - just mundane X's, nothing at all like the standard of Banksy! Next, someone made holes at the centre of each cross - buried treasure maybe? - no chance. Small brass discs have been set into the surface - so small in fact, that once the yellow paint wears off, nobody is going to be aware of them.

By the way, Dysart Town Trail is now officially open and as fifepublicit (sic) pointed out a few weeks ago, five information points have been erected. One is shown below.
